

Arizona Country Club

Foursite was recently responsible for project managing the renovation and new addition to The Arizona Country Club. The 60,000 sf project consisted of the following: a two story building with separate mixed and men's grilles, women's lounge, new kitchen, pro-shop, locker rooms, full service spa, state of the art fitness facility and new administration offices.

The main kitchen, banquet rooms and maintenance yard of the club were renovated, brought up to code and refinished to be consistent with the new building. Interesting details include the vaulted roof which dissects and spans the entire building through the entrance lobby and extends from the valet stand through the mixed grille walls, which open onto a covered rear patio with views of the golf course.

The structure of the existing kitchen and banquet rooms remained, with the exception of the installation of the new roof. The structure for the new two story building was structural steel and masonry. The exterior walls were in part metal framed curtain walls and full height storefront systems.
